

ABOUT US

Hello. I'm Frank Doherty, Founder and President of Aquatox Research.

Aquatox Research is a small for-profit business located in Central New York. As Aquatox approaches it's 30-yr anniversary, I have personally been studying and researching the field of Aquatic Toxicology since the late 1970s when I started working on my Master's degree at Ohio University. After 5 years in the chemical industry supervising an in-house toxicity testing lab, I returned to grad school to earn my doctorate at Virginia Tech. I initially came to Syracuse in 1987 to resurrect an aquatic toxicity testing lab with a local contractor. While our primary focus here at Aquatox in New York is WETT Testing we've earned clients from across the United States for our chemical testing and Microtox testing service. Tests are conducted by an able staff of technicians dedicated to the protection of the aquatic environment.

Thank you for visiting our website. I look forward to discussing any questions you may have about our services.
